Protecting your personal information is extremely important. This is a copy of Legal & General Assurance Society Limited's (we, our, us) privacy policy, which sets out how we use and protect your personal information. You are receiving this privacy notice because you are a member of a pension scheme (scheme) and the trustee (or trustees) of the scheme (trustee) shares information with us for the purposes of managing its risk related to the scheme, including insuring certain risks or because we are acting as a reinsurance company for another insurance provider through a reinsurance contract.

We are sending you this notice due to the new laws which have applied since 25 May 2018. Due to the new laws, companies that handle personal information are giving customers more details on how they gather, use and share this information as well as providing information on the rights you have on how this information is processed. You don't need to do anything, but you may want to take time to read this.

For the purposes of the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), we are the data controller for the personal information that the trustee (or a third party acting on behalf of the trustee) or an insurance provider has given us. This means we have a responsibility to make sure your information is kept safe and not misused.

The trustee, trustee adviser of the scheme or other third party may give us any or all of the following personal information about you.

1. Personal details such as your name, sex, age, date of birth, email address, postal address and phone number.
2. Family circumstances such as details about your current marriage or partnerships your marital history and details of your family and dependants.
3. Employment details such as pensionable pay, length of service, employment and career history and job title.
4. Financial details such as your income, salary and bank account details to process pension payments or benefits.

We would only hold special-category data (sensitive information), such as a description of your physical or mental health, if you have given us permission (consent) to hold this because you need to retire early due to ill health.

When we receive your personal information, we will use, analyse, store and keep it for a number of purposes, including the following.

1. To provide quotations for either removing risk from the scheme or providing reinsurance for another insurance provider.
2. To administer and support an insurance contract that the trustee may buy or has bought from us to protect scheme member benefits or provide reinsurance benefits.
3. To make sure that we accurately pay the correct benefits and claims to the appropriate scheme members in connection with the insurance contract or reinsurance benefits. In some cases we may use computer systems to make automated decisions or to carry out profiling (automated processing of personal information, including using personal information to evaluate certain personal aspects, and in particular to analyse or predict aspects concerning that person's health, including assessing risks) based on the personal information we have received from the trustee, the trustee adviser or an insurance provider. We will automatically process your information along with information about the other members of the scheme to help us manage the scheme risks or reinsurance contract, for example setting mortality assumptions (rates of death) for specific schemes, and to report on longevity risks (risks relating to how much longer people live) and related demographic risks (risks relating to the social and economic characteristics of a population, for example age, gender, income level, marital status, occupation and so on).
4. To carry out the obligations we have under our contract with you, or the trustees, to provide you with the options available to you, which may include us asking you for special-category sensitive information (for example, medical information if you need to retire early due to ill health).
5. To keep to any laws or regulations that apply.
6. To carry out market research, statistical analysis and customer profiling to help us develop and improve our processes, products and services, which can include creating a database of the social and economic characteristics of our customers.

We may also share your personal information with any or all of the following in connection with insuring longevity risks and related demographic risks.

1. Our group companies and group functions, including those involved in setting scheme-specific mortality assumptions (rates of death), financial reporting, legal and marketing.

2. The reinsurers (organisations which provide insurance for insurance companies) of longevity risks and related demographic risks. (You can find a list of the reinsurers that we normally use, and links to each of their privacy policies, at www.legalandgeneral.com/privacy-policy/consent-controllers/.)
3. Third parties who check for people who are at higher risk of bribery and corruption because of their position (known as politically exposed persons or PEPs), carry out sanctions screening (the process of reviewing sanctions lists to check if any person is involved in financing crime or terrorism, so that appropriate action can be taken, as needed, to keep within the law) and trace members and check they are still alive, or third parties instructed by the trustee, such as scheme auditors.

We, reinsurers or third-party service providers (those able to provide better value for money or who provide a specialist service) will use, analyse, store and maintain your personal information for a number of purposes, including the following.

1. Assessing it to prevent fraud.
2. Making decisions relating to the transaction being underwritten (analysis of the risk).
3. Other purposes we may decide on from time to time.

Reinsurers may also share your personal information with retrocessionaires (large organisations who insure reinsurers) or other providers, who will use, analyse, store and keep your personal information for the same or similar purposes as those set out above.

We and each of the organisations and people listed above will rely on a condition under the GDPR known as 'legitimate interests' to use your personal information for any other purpose described in this privacy notice. This means it must be in our legitimate interests to collect your personal information as it gives us the information we need to allow us to deal with the risks we face and to provide our services more effectively.

To provide you with information about services and products that may interest you, we may also send marketing information to you by post only if we consider that it is in our legitimate interest and the trustee has not restricted us from sending you marketing information.

Your information will never be given to a third party for the purposes of them sending you marketing information.

You may opt out of marketing at any time by emailing or phoning your customer services team. Or, you can also use the Contact Us section of our website at legalandgeneral.com/existing-customers/contact-us

We and the other organisations and people mentioned above can transfer the personal information we get from the trustee or a trustee adviser to an organisation outside the European Economic Area (EEA). These organisations will take all reasonably necessary steps to make sure that they treat your information in line with this privacy notice. We will only transfer your personal information outside the EEA if we are allowed to do so by law, for example, if:

1. the transfer is based on standard data protection clauses adopted or approved by the European Commission;
2. the transfer is to a territory that is seen as adequate by the European Commission; or
3. the organisation or person receiving it has approved an equivalent level of standards and the personal information is protected.

We and the other organisations and persons mentioned above will each keep your personal information in line with our and their retention policies. We and they decide on the length of time the information is kept for based on the minimum retention periods required by law or regulation. We and they will only keep your personal information after this period if there's a legitimate and provable business reason to do so. Our own policy is to delete or anonymise (so that it can no longer be identified as being about you) all personal information provided for the purpose of providing a quote for no more than six months after the date on which we are told that the quote was not taken up or acted on.

Under the legitimate interests condition of the GDPR, we may keep your personal information indefinitely to help us deal with any enquires we receive in the future from you, your family or financial adviser, or our regulators. For certain research and statistical activities, we may also keep limited personal information about you indefinitely, including medical information, to define our actuarial, underwriting and pricing risk strategies only. We will not use this information to make a decision about, or take measures against, you.

Preventing fraud

We will check your details with fraud prevention agencies. If you provide false or inaccurate information or we identify it, we will pass details to fraud prevention agencies. Law enforcement agencies may access and use this information. We may also share information about you with other organisations and public bodies, including the police, and we may check or file your details with fraud prevention agencies and databases.

We and other organisations may also access and use this information to prevent fraud and money laundering, for example, when:

1. checking details on applications for credit and credit-related or other facilities;
2. managing credit and credit-related accounts or facilities;
3. recovering debt;
4. checking details on proposals and claims for all types of insurance; or
5. checking details of job applicants and employees.

We and other organisations may access and use the information recorded by fraud prevention agencies in other countries. Please contact our Group Financial Crime department if you want to receive the relevant details of the fraud prevention agencies:

Group Financial Crime, 7th Floor, Brunel House, 2 Fitzalan Road, Cardiff CF24 0EB

We may also check the details of other parties related to your contract, including checking their identity. This includes beneficiaries, trustees, settlors, third-party premium payers, executors or administrators of your estate, parties with power of attorney and anyone else who may benefit from the contract.

Your rights

You have rights under data protection law that relate to the way we process your personal information. You can find more information on these rights on the ICO's website. If you want to enforce any of these rights, please get in touch with your customer services team. Or, you can also use the Contact Us section of our website.

Your rights

1. The right to access the personal information that we hold about you.
2. The right to make us correct any inaccurate personal information we hold about you.
3. The right to make us erase any personal information we hold about you. This right will only apply if, for example:
 - we no longer need to use the personal information to achieve the purpose we collected it for;
 - you withdraw your permission (consent) if we're using your personal information based on that permission (consent); and
 - you object to the way we use your information, and there is no overriding legitimate interest.
4. The right to restrict how we process the personal information we hold about you. This right will only apply if, for example:

Your rights

- you dispute the accuracy of the personal information we hold;
- you would like us to erase your information, but we need to hold it in order to stop processing it;
- you have the right to tell us to erase the personal information, but would instead prefer that we restrict how we process it; or
- we no longer need to use the personal information to achieve the purpose we collected it for, but you need the information for legal claims.

5. The right to object to us processing personal information we hold about you (including for the purposes of sending marketing material to you).
6. The right to receive personal information, which you have given us, in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format. You also have the right to make us transfer this personal information to another organisation.
7. The right to withdraw your permission (consent), if we're relying on it to use your personal information.
8. For automated decisions (including profiling), you have the right to ask for:
 - an explanation of the decision, and to challenge it; or
 - the decision to be reviewed by a person (not a computer).

If you have any questions about this privacy notice or want to enforce any of your rights, please phone our Defined Benefits Retirements Team on 03450 778 778 or email them at dbretirements@landg.com.

If you have any concerns about the way we process your personal information, or are not happy with the way we have handled a request in relation to your rights, you also have the right to make a complaint to the Information Commissioner's Office. Their address is: First Contact Team, Information Commissioner's Office, Wycliffe House, Water Lane, Wilmslow, SK9 5AF.

We have appointed a data protection officer to provide independent expert advice and make sure we are keeping to data protection laws. Her details are as follows.
